"Very good, very good, Medra," said the wizard. "You may call me Father."..If Diamond had been born to that kind of power, if that was his gift, then all Golden's dreams and plans of training him in the business, and having him help in expanding the carting route to a regular trade with South Port, and buying up the chestnut forests above Reche -- all such plans dwindled into trifles. Might Diamond go (as his mother's uncle had gone) to the School of Wizards on Roke Island? Might he (as that uncle had done) gain glory for his family and dominion over lord and commoner, becoming a Mage in the Court of the Lords Regent in the Great Port of Havnor? Golden all but floated up the stairs himself, borne on such visions.. "You can tell 'em you're the band that's getting paid."..power over him now. was a lion. He lifted himself up heavily, the front first. I saw all of him now, five. He met there a mage, an old man called Highdrake, whose true name has been lost. When Highdrake heard the tale of Morred's Isle he smiled and looked sad and shook his head. "Not here," he said. "Not this. The Lords of Pendor are good men. They remember the kings. They don't seek war or plunder. But they send their sons west dragon hunting. In sport. As if the dragons of the West Reach were ducks or geese for the killing! No good will come of that." There's no truth in this tale but one, which is that indeed one of the first Masters of Roke. "Look at that," said the woman. "He's not friendly with most folk." "He drinks because he drinks," she said. "With some, that's all it is. I'll be in the dairy, now..comes by chance. All any of us knows is how it seems to us. There are names behind names, my Lord." "Sit down," she said. He sat down, but he sat fretting.. "I am hungry now," said the mage. He took a hardboiled egg from the basket, cracked, shelled, and ate it..if he was indeed in a plague-stricken place or an island under a curse. He went on. Between a challenging. There was a cat, a big grey, sitting on his four paws on the hearth gazing at the. Medra bowed his head, standing there. "Anieb," he said, "can you come back this far? I don't know the way." He waited a while. He saw darkness, heard silence. Slow and halting, he entered the passage..stood waiting for them. Irian strode forward to face him.. "My son, there is no reason," she said, suddenly passionate, "there is no reason why you should give up everything you love!"..their Parley and merchant and trade guilds.. "On Havnor," he said, "far from Roke, in a village on Mount Onn, among people who know nothing of the world, there are still women of the Hand. That net hasn't broken after so many years. How was it woven?" There were no inns on this road through what had once all been the Domain of Iria. As the sun. These legends are best preserved in Hur-at-Hur, the easternmost of the Kargad Lands, where dragons have degenerated into animals without high intelligence. Yet it is in Hur-at-Hur that people keep the most vivid conviction of the original kinship of human and dragon kind. And with these tales of ancient times come stories of recent days about dragons who take human form, humans who take dragon form, beings who are in fact both human and dragon..dispersed, then joined again into streams, so that a luminous blood seemed to course within

There were people of the Hand there whom he trusted. One of them was a man called Crow, a wealthy recluse, who had no gift of magic but a great passion for what was written, for books of lore and history. It was Crow who had, as he said, stuck Tern's nose into a book till he could read it. "Illiterate wizards are the curse of Earthsea!" he cried. "Ignorant power is a bane!" Crow was a strange man, willful, arrogant, obstinate, and, in defense of his passion, brave. He had defied Losen's power, years before, going to the Port of Havnor in disguise and coming away with four books from an ancient royal library. He had just obtained, and was vastly proud of, an arcane treatise from Way concerning quicksilver. "Got that from under Losen's nose too," he said to Tern. "Come have a look at it!
